1. OVERVIEW
This Policy outlines rules and standards associated with the distribution of scholastic prizes and medals within Bond University.

2. THE POLICY

2.1. Prizes
2.1.1. Frequency of Prize Distribution
Prizes shall be awarded annually, except that, in accepting any bequest to fund a prize, the University reserves the right to vary the terms of acceptance if the annual interest falls below the minimum amount approved for a prize by:

- offering the prize every two (2) years;
- using capital progressively to make up annual prize amount until the fund is exhausted;
- combining the fund with another source of revenue to maintain the annual amount for disbursement.

2.1.2. Amount of Prizes
The minimum value for a prize shall be $500. The University reserves the right to revise the minimum amount from time to time, provided that:

- twelve (12) months’ notice of any increase is given to the donor;
- no donor who has undertaken to offer a prize for five (5) years will be expected to increase the amount during that period.

2.1.3. Tenure of Prizes
A prize with the name of the donor attached is normally offered for a minimum period of five (5) calendar years.

A prize may be funded by annual donation, a sum of money to cover five (5) or more years of awards or a bequest from which the interest is available annually.

2.1.4. Composition of Prizes
Prizes may take the form of:

- a cash award;
- books or a voucher to purchase same;
- equipment;
- software or audio-visual supplies relevant to the discipline for which the prize is offered;
- travel vouchers, accommodation in a University hall of residence or such other alternative as approved by Academic Senate.

In addition, but not funded from the $500 minimum, a medallion or other suitable inscribed memento provided by the donor may be awarded to the prize winner. The prize may be accompanied by an optional offer of employment within a donor’s organisation for a designated period either during or following completion of the winner’s course of study.

2.1.5. Selection Criteria for Awarding Prizes
A prize may be awarded to a student who has demonstrated the greatest proficiency in an individual subject or designated group of subjects which will normally be determined by one of the following measures:

- overall grade point average achieved over one (1) or two (2) full-time semesters;
- overall grade point average achieved in a designated group of not more than four (4) subjects over one (1) or two (2) full-time semesters;
- grade achieved in a designated subject; or
- results achieved in a special project under terms and conditions approved by the Academic Senate.
- cumulative grade point average over the duration of program of study.

2.1.6. Exceptions for Awarding Prizes
Prizes may not be awarded under the following conditions:

- no student may receive the same prize more than once, unless an exception is provided for in the schedule with regard to a specific prize; and
- a student who has previously enrolled for a subject at Bond University (or a subject at another institution deemed by the selection panel to be an equivalent) is not eligible for consideration for a prize in that subject.

A prize shall not be awarded in any year if, in the opinion of the selection panel, there is no candidate of sufficient merit to justify an award. All matters relating to the award of a prize are subject to the overall authority of the University Council which reserves the right to vary regulations for serious cause at its discretion, having due regard, as far as possible, to the wishes of the donor.

2.1.7. Donor Restrictions on Prizes
If a donor wishes, candidature for prizes may be restricted to one (1) of the following groups:

- citizens or permanent residents of a particular country;
- students who reside within a designated Australian state or region approved by council;
- female students;
- male students;
- students of a designated group approved by Academic Senate as worthy of special recognition or encouragement by a prize.
